Introduction

The Reference Corporation Thesaurus of Subject & Geographic Descriptors provides the controlled vocabulary lists for:

Middle East Abstracts & Index
Al-Qaeda & Jihadi Movements Worldwide
Kurds & Kurdistan
Women in the Middle East

Asia-Pacific Database
Eurasia Database
Hispanica/Lusitania Database
Middle East & Africa Database, and Multiculturalism & Ethnic Policy Database.

Two controlled vocabulary lists are included in this volume: subject and geographic descriptors. The range of materials covered in the Reference bibliographies and databases has resulted in the development of these two heavily cross-referenced controlled vocabulary sets to make database searches more productive.

The subject controlled vocabulary is easy to use and approaches natural language.

The geographic controlled vocabulary is a standard set of terms with detailed cross references to provide authoritative usage for countries, subnational units and regions.

Cross-Reference Tags

The following controlled vocabulary lists use a set of cross-reference tags that indicate the relationship between terms. The tags include:

Usage Tags:

USE points to a descriptor from a synonym or other term that used as a descriptor. Most other terms have quicker acronym that can also be used for searching.

UF points back towards a non-descriptor.

- SN scope note: this note clarifies the meaning or usage of a controlled vocabulary term.
- XT points toward other descriptors that can be used with the term for more productive search strategies. These search hints have been embedded in the controlled vocabulary to provide pointers to improved search strategies.

Heirachical Tags:

- BT denotes 'broader than': points toward a more general or superset term; in the geographical descriptor list a larger jurisdiction or a region.
- NT denotes 'narrower than': points toward a less general or subset term.

Macro-Term Descriptors

The macro-term descriptor is an innovation in the Reference/Aristarchus reference books and databases that allow quick retrieval of complex search domains without requiring a difficult or iterative search strategy. In effect, the macroterm is a short substitute for intricate and often difficult search strategies. Macro-terms condense search strategies into single search terms, allowing retrieval of the preprocessed searches on these topics that have been embedded into the descriptoring of the database.

For example, searching Japanese investment in the United States in many databases is essentially impossible: the use of the relevant macro-term reduces this difficult process to just a few keystrokes. The descriptor 'FIIRAN' enables such retrieval from a single term:

FIIRAN Foreign Investment in Iran

Similarly, descriptors for 'Doing Business In' allows retrieval for each country in the world for this otherwise awkward search problem. For example:

DBIIRAN Doing Business in Iran

There are hundreds of such macro-terms used in descriptoring Reference/Aristarchus databases and in indexing its reference books. There are, for example, such 'Foreign Investment' and 'Doing Business In' terms for every country in the world. The new Biogeographical Regionalization descriptors are themselves macro-terms, combining environmental and regional concepts in single search terms.

Other Producers
SN Signifies a product market in which 'other' producers have 20% of more market share; that is, a market that is tending to commoditarization.

Transnational Corporations
SN Denotes corporations (TNC) based in a single nation that operate across national boundaries; compare to Multinational Corporations (MNC) and Supranationals. Note that the UN usage followed here differs from the American usage which uses MNC for TNC, and lacks any term for a corporation which is a venture of multiple states.
